Reds Clear Way To Resume Talks

Remove Guards, Permit Allied Newsmen Attend Next Meeting

SEOUL, Korea (Sunday) (AP)—The Communists agreed today to remove armed guards from Kaesong and admit 20 Allied correspondents but want to talk over the rest of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's demands for resuming cease-

There was no immediate comment from Allied headquarters as to when the talks, broken off since Wednesday, might be resumed.

The Peiping radio mildly chastised the Allies in today's broadcast of the Communist message. A The text of the reply to Ridgway's demands of Friday said the concessions were made "to eliminate misunderstandings and arguments over some side questions.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) tial businesses today as flood and fire stunned this metropolitan area of 900,000 popu-

TRAFALGAR SQUARE

LONDON-Among the many other things for which this city is Trafalgar Square, that great meeting place on which not which not only busy thoroughfares but a queer admixture of people and views, both orthodox and unorthodox, converge. On any day you can see crowds of city clerks, both men and women, eating their sandwiches on its seats against the background of blooming rhododendrons, or perched on the parapet of the fountains that endlessly splash their merry music or of the fountains that endlessly splash their merry music or reflect miniature rainbows in the fleeting glints of sunshine. And every day you can see those same clerks, as well as idlers and children, feeding the pigeons, those feathered beg-gars who defy the human law against vagrants, DEFIANT ECHOES  $B^{\mathrm{UT}}$  the thousands of pigeons are not the only creatures of defiant attitude who strut their stuff right under the very noses of the "bobbies" in that busy square. From time imme-morial Trafalgar Square has been the recognized rendezvous of rebels looking for a platform from which to get their own pet peeves "off their chests."

It was a favorite finale for the parades in the days of the militant suffragette campaigns. From the plinth, guarded with great bronze Landseer lions at the base of Lord Nelson's col-I have heard ploneers of the "Votes For Women" doc-hurl anathemas at the Government of the day—and turn the tables on hecklers with witty devastating repartee.

LABOR LAMENT

AN OLD SOCIALIST, with whom I got into conservation A while waiting for a bus at the corner of the Strand, mourned the passing of the old days when Socialism and the labor movement was in its infancy in Britain and its pioneers used to harangue the crowds from the aforesaid plinth.

He reminded me sadly that it was just 63 years ago since John Burns and the early Labor men "got their 'eads bashed in" on a certain Black Sunday for flaunting a philosophy that was then considered only one step removed from Nihilism and anarchy. Today, Harry Pollitt and his ilk get no more than catcalls, a sorry come-down, he regretfully added.

MY INFORMANT reminiscently wiped a rather rheumy eye end grieved that all the old fervour had gone-along with a lot of other good things of the good old days. Why, even as re-cently as ten years or so ago, at the time of Sir Oswald Mos-ley's Fascist campaign, he had seen a potato studded with razor blades hurled at one of Mosley's followers who was haranguing the crowd. Fortunately—or unfortunately, depending on where your sympathies lay, apparently—the nasty missile had hit one of the lions and cut itself to pieces.

Out of his capacious memory, this ancient habitue of Trafalgar Square also recalled another interesting occasion last Easter when an Irish society held a rally in memory of the 1916 rebellion in Ireland against English rule.

ROAR OF LIONS

BUT that was tame in comparison to the early Labor days. Not even a brick was thrown, he mourned, in spite of all the invective hurled by the Irish speakers against Britain. And I had to smile when he assured me that "what them fellers said would make yer 'air curl. And yer couldn't miss it, wot's more, becos they 'ad their loud-speakers wired through the mouths of the lions."

For, to my puckish sense of humor, there was something typically Irish in a situation which broadcast such anti-British sentiments through the mouths of British lions, under the eye and ears of Lord Nelson himself.

But I don't doubt that he, from the top of his obelisk, turned his blind eye and perhaps a deaf ear on such treasonable utterances and un-British behaviour, as he has been doing for years and as he will probably go on doing till the end of time.

LIFE'S LONGEST HOURS

The longest hours of life, often experienced as a child, usually precede some simple, anticipated pleasure. As simple pleasures lose their enchantment and age bends one's back, time is all too fleeting. Months seem like seconds, years like minutes, and life is only a day. But everyone who lives long enough must grow old. The aged of our time are fortunate indeed, for with life expectancy on the increase, geriatrics (medical treatment of the aged) has become an important medical specialty. Nutritional deficiencies and diseases of the aged are more thoroughly understood, and proper treatment is available, Longer life and better health for all are the result.

"We are pretty much at capacity now," he added.

A further increase is not expected unless people suddenly start sprinkling and using water between 12 midnight and 4 in the morning, Mr. Upward said. While water is sold at the peak rate of 29,000,000 gallons a day up to 11 at night it drops down to about 13,000,000 during the after midnight hours, according to Mr. Upward, striking the 500,000-gallon average for 24-hour period.

How To Assure More Inflation

MR. DONALD FLEMING, M.P., SAYS Mr. Abbott has consistently under-estimated his revenue. This is true—and very fortunate for Canada. When the war ended this nation, like all others, found itself with a huge new debt and an inflation on its hands. Merely to pay the interest on the debt was costing as much as the total expendi-ture of government before the war. Since the public already was begin-ning to produce today's inflation by spending too buich money, its purchasing power had somehow to be reduced until the available supply of goods could increase.

To reduce the swollen gebt, to hold down inflationary pressures, Mr. Abbott maintained high taxes and accumulated large surpluses. These were used to reduce the debt and the excessive purchasing power. Together they provided the available remedy against inflation

Mr. Abbott did not go too far in th surpluses were constantly under attack by the Conservative Party which, in the same breath, was demanding a gigantic expansion in governmental spending of all sorts. Mr. Drew's theme throughout 1948 and early 1949 was that Mr. Abbott "over-taxed" the Canadian people that the surplus was unnecessary, that taxes should be reduced, that everybody should be allowed to enjoy an easier life.

Under the political pressure thus created among discontented taxpayers, the Government drastically reduced taxes to make sure of winning the 1949 elec-tion. Politically this was unnecessary.

dian government, like the government of the United States, had been frightened by the slight 1949 recession, believed that deflation rather than inflation lay ahead. Hence it thought we could afford to collect less taxes and abandon our large postwar surpluses. All such calculations were destroyed by the new inflationary spiral which began with the outbreak of the Korean war.

In the inflation pow under way with

In the inflation now under way, with our huge national income (in debased dollars) nothing could be more useful than a balanced budget and, if possible, a budget in large surplus, both to reduce our debt and to curb the public's demand for goods.

But just such a policy is now attacked by the Conservative Party through its spokesman, Mr. Fleming. Mr. Abbott's prudent budgeting, his continuing, though much smaller surpluses, are assailed and the new tax increa denounced as unnecessary. In plain terms, the Conservative Party, while deploring inflation every day, asks Mr. Abbott to reverse gears and adopt inflationary finance.

If such pressure from the Con-servative Party, and from a public which accepts its reckless-doctrine, should force the Government to abandon its firm fiscal policies then we may be absolutely sure of more inflation. Even the present policy, as the last cost-of-living figures show, is not proving strong enough.

The Conservative Party would make it weaker. It is not concerned with infla-tion. It is concerned with votes.

Down With Colors Flying

PAYMENT BY THE ARGENTINE Government of $1,360,000 for the newspaper La Prensa appears to mark the final act in a sequence of events that has earned for President Peron the censure of the free world.

For several years the great journal, a champion of freedom that had won world-wide recognition, had labored under the petty persecutions of the Argentine dictator. Juggling of newsprint supplies, discriminatory edicts relating to adver-tising, and other measures designed to harry one of the few institutions which remained to curb the activities of the totalitarian regime, had been survived. But the Government-engineered strike of news vendors seven months ago was the beginning of the end. Despite the efforts of many loyal employees the great plant was forced to close down. A Government commission took possession of the equipment. The paper was re-constituted as a Government-dominated organ. And this week the owners were paid off with a sum which represents only a fraction of the value of the property.

President Peron has scored a marked victory. He has silenced a voice which did not hesitate to point out his faults, report facts rather than Government "hand-outs" and generally comport itself as a newspaper must to preserve integrity. Integrity was not a quality the dictator fancied in his country's news papers. Subservience—the cardinal vir-tue in a police state—suited him much more. That, La Prensa was not willing full weight of his regime and close the paper. Yet though he has won a battle, he has in reality lost a war. Wherever men and women are free to observe and form conclusions, Mr. Peron has lost heavily. Any last lingering doubts of his totalitarian capabilities have been dispelled. By its very death, La Prensa has made public to all the world the warning it sought to issue in life. The press of the free world will be strength ened in its determination to continue to fight, so that freedom of the printed

In the minds of some Victorians, that would solve the entire question. Yet in the House of Lords a very evident disagreement has been aired over the adequacy of the English pub. The "ideal" to some of our citizens does

That point should have been recog-ted. No liquor laws anywhere can satisfy everyone. Nor would local revision to make our facilities conform to the English type be a guarantee of tourist business if, as one of the peers suggests, the original is keeping visitors away and and thereby hurting national revenue.

Chips Off The Old Brock By DAVID BROCK

IN THESE days when eating is so costly, I think we housewives ought to get together and exchange disgusting recipes. Because the more disgusted we get, the less we can eat. I know some nifty ones myself. I had been saving them mies whom I may one day have to entertain. But in the national emergency, I had better share them round. There is, for example, a dry, sticky, and ut-terly horrible salad e of bad walnuts, strawberry jam, and filthy lettuce in the first stages of decay. At least, I think there must be. I have never heard of this precise concoction myself, but it sounds only too likely. Magazines are crammed with such things. So are stomachs.

IF THE price of meat oppresses you, why not try importing a few pos-? Their rat-like tails are peculiarly revolting on any dinner table. I once helped to import a couple of possum my-self. I was not the host at this ghastly party, but I was a stooge of his. He wanted to sicken a man who had fed him on seal meat a short time before. There had been something the matter with the seal, or the way he was cooked, and soon after dinner there was also the matter with my friend. something the matter with my friend. And my friend resented this bitterly, so he wrote to his father in New Orleans and asked for two nasty little possums. The father wired back: "Alive or dead?" And the son replied: "The deader the

WELL, we organized a real old South We cooked those little animals as best we could, because we were going to have to eat fragments of them ourselves. But we managed to make them quite repulsive all the same . . . though no more repulsive than God had already made them, really. When we sat down to din-ner, we told the seal-eater that as our guest of honor, he was going to have th tails. They (we said) were the greatest delicacy known to Louisiana. Or to Alabama, either. People in the Deep South went crazy with gluttony when they thought of possum tails. He gave them a few cautious looks and said they didn't look any too wholesome to him, some how. They reminded him of rats' tails. They were too pink and reptile-like, But we explained he was guilty of a gastronomic error. So he ate them. And he never spoke to us again. Which, after all was the desired result.

SUBSTITUTES

BUT believe me, girls, there are other things which can take the place of imported possum. Not all of us know a possum owner or possum broker or even a bootlegger of untaxed and contraband possums. traband possums. Just because we don't know the right people, that needn't deter us from dishing up something quite as outrageous as possum tails. I hesitate to describe them, for fear of putting you off what food you have left in the larder. But a day may come when it will be necessary for me to go into it.

FOR vegetarians I have a good recipe for ice-cream made from non-milk ... it is made from purest starch, and tastes like it. For meat-eaters, I have countless ways of making a good starfish chowder. If you are short of star-fish, you can add bulk with kelp. No, there's not any need for us to go hungry in difficult times. Bishop Stringer of the Yukon was once compelled to eat his own boots . . . properly prepared and cooked, you understand. Most of us have not come to that. I know many men-who are not even bishops, still living on boiled braces and fried hats. They are saving their boots for a rainy day

WEDNESDAY, 11th-This day, a memorably hot one, I did join a goodly company of gentlemen and in carriages we journeyed into the country to view the source of our city's water supply. Under direction of Commissioner Ralph Davis, a giant of a man and ably fitted for a job of similar dimensions, w visited various sites where water is in inded and saw the plant whereat is administered a proportion of chlorine gas. At this I could not help but recall the story of the people who had complained of the observed ill effects of this most helpful disinfectant, but had reg-istered their displeasure the day before the treatment was commenced. At Sooke Lake we were most admirably enter-tained by Master Norman Kennedy and his good wife, who spared no effort to ght us with cold turkey, home-made bread, cake and other country delicacies. ## Cabinet Re-Shuffle Seen As Measure Needed To Combat Growing Government Complacency

Saturday Night and The Victoria Daily Times, from Ottawa

A changes before the fall session of Parliament is being discussed in Ottawa. I don't pretend to know what may be in the Prime Minister's mind: this is a properly kept letely quiet until the But the ministry has been very stable ever since Mr. St. Laurent took office, and it has been suggested that a shake-up might be good for the Government as a whole and for ministers individually.

Barkway

There is no denying that most of There is no denying that most of the present ministers, as well as the official staffs, find it very much more pleasant to work under Mr. St. Laurent than they did under Mr. Mackenzie King. He is more considerate and easier of access, and he inspires a more confident relationship between himself and his

In many ways this is pure gain. It must certainly make a more congenial atmosphere to work in. If it has a draw-back, as some close observers have suged, it is that it may encourage the complacency which is already one of the most conspicuous traits of this Government. One possible way of reducing the complacency and putting the de-partmental ministers on their toes might be to make a drastic shuffle of port-

Since Mr. St. Laurent became Prime Minister on November 15, 1948, his Cab-Minister on November 15, 1948, his Cabinet changes have been kept to a minimum. At the beginning of 1950 one new portfolio was created by a needed reorganization of the Department of Reconstruction and Supply, which was a relic of the war, and the Department of Mines and Resources, which had become a huge catch-all.

The hig Nova Scotian, Robert Win-

The big Nova Scotian, Robert Winters, who won't be 41 until next month, moved from Reconstruction to the new Department of Resources and Development. Colin Gibson retired to the Ontario Bench; and two new ministers came in. First, the new portfolio of Citizenship and Immigration went to Walter Harris, one of the best of the younger Liberals (he is 47) and the most obvious "future Prime Minister" of his generation. A little later George Prudham, an

Edmonton contractor, was given the de-partment of Mines and Technical Surveys, which gave Alberta its Cabinet representation and allowed Senator James Mackinnon to retire at last. The only other change Mr. St. Laurent has made was forced on him by the death of Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor. He picked Mr. Milton Gregg to succeed him, and moved-Hugues (Bobby) Lapointe, who is still only 40, to replace him as Minister of Veterans Affairs. With these exceptions the Cabinet is still as it was in 1948. The new department of Defence Production has been formed, but Mr. C. D. his previous department of Trade and

Of the other ministers Mr. Brooke Claxton has been at National Defence since the end of 1946, and Mr. Abbott has been at Finance since the same Mr Pearson has been Secretary State for External Affairs ever since moved from the civil service into politics in 1948.

If changes' are to be made the most obvious one is to relieve Mr. Howe of the double portfolio he holds now. He would certainly stick to Defence Production, but it might be fairer both on him and on the department of Trade and Commerce to appoint a new min-

ALL POSSIBILITIES

Mr. Claxton, Mr. Abbott and Mr. Pearson are all possibilities for a move, though there is no evidence either that the Prime Minister means to move them or that they want to change their spheres. Of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Abbott particularly, it is said that if they ever want to be Prime Minister, they ought to change now

Mr. Abbott's Department of Finance is not generally supposed to be the most popular place, particularly at a time like this when fiscal policy calls for stiff taxes and other fiscal deterrents to spending. Mr. Pearson certainly has the department for which he is most fitted by temperament and experience, but it is one that tends to keep him out of the rough-and-tumble of domestic politics. And that may not be a good thing if Mr. Pearson is to be in the competition to succeed Mr. St. Laurent when the time comes,

Allies Must Pull Together Under Leader

By JOSEPH ALSOP, From Washington

IT WILL come as a shock to Americans at home who have been airily arguing about whether we "want allies," or should "go it alone." Yet the fact is that our allies are also beginning to argue about whether they want us. This seems to this reporter seems to this reporter by far the most sig-nificant single phenomenon observed during a long, just concluded trip abroad. There are plenty of Alsop American feeling within the Western alliance. The defense program which we have urged upon them is a heavy burden to the British, who have carried so many burdens for so long. The French, with their weak government, are hardly able to keep their promise to us to raise men for more divisions. German rearmament pleases no one, Yet even these grave difficulties are essentially superficial. They would matter little, if it were not for two other, less noticeable but far deeper sources

The first of these trouble sources it had better be admitted frankly-is the failure of American leadership since the 1948 election. From November, 1949, until the Korean aggression, the Administration told our alies, as it told the country, that we could all disarm and be comfortable. Then came the Korean challenge and the response. Then, with the advent of George C. Marshall at the Defense Department, there was an immense raising of rearmament sights. Then there was the victorious complacency after Inchon in October and the near panic after the Yalu defeat in November and December. And then there were two or three months before Gen. MacArthur's recall, when no one quite knew what American policy

Other choppings and changings might also be noted. But the foregoing is enough to indicate how unpredictable the U.S. has seemed to the British, the French and its other allies.

The Western alliance has no other sible leader but the United States. And our unsteady leadership in the past two years and a half has sadly shaken the confidence in the United States that was built up during the war and the great policy-making years just after the

Co-operation Halifax Chronicle-Herald

It is becoming recognized, more and more, that good education and good citizenship depend upon a truly effective relationship between parent and teacher, with understanding on both sides and a ready co-operation between them. The Home and School Movement is accomplishing much that is useful in bringing parents and teachers together, an effort of Soviet occupation, the impulse to appease is naturally difficult to resist.

This impulse would be less important today, if our allies thought that all risks, to them as well as to us, were being coolly and wisely calculated in Washington. But that is not the impression that has been conveyed. And thus, while our allies have no notion of surrender, they suffer from an almost hysterical fear that they will be plunged into an unneces sary war by American "excitability."

Furthermore, this situation has been vulnerable flank of the free world. great war of nerves offensive has been launched to capitalize on our allies' fears. The Kremlin's main aim and hope during the months immediately ahead will be to split and thus to paralyze the Western alliance. Every weapon of psychological warfare, from the crassest intimidation to the most subtle subversion, is being and will be used to this end.

This is because the Kremlin knows that the United States cannot go it alone. Fear of atomic attack on Russia by the American Strategic Air Force is the only existing deterrent to further Soviet aggression. The effectiveness of the U.S. Strategic Air Force now almost entirely depends upon overseas air bases, in ter-ritories of the British and our other

Tigers Claw A's, But Good

Victoria Athletics returned home last night, shot their ace pitcher Bill Osborn, bumped into a home-run barrage in the first two innings, and were lucky to escape as fortunately as they did-on the short end of a 14-6 count against Tacoma's rampant Tigers.

The defeat did little to enhance the A's bid for a playoff spot, but there was practically nothing the Sturgeon men could with three doubles, good for two do about it after Vince DiMaggio and Butch Moran had upset Osborn's applecart before he even got the riksh hitched up.

Hockey's Tub-Thumper Thumps For The Times

Kenny McKenzie, co-owner of The Hockey News, publicity director for the National Hockey League, and by his own admission a young man about Montreal, was a visitor in town Friday and gladly accepted the offer to write a guest column.

If by chance you see the caption The Hockey News appearing in every second line don't be at all surprised as Ken and two cohorts started this publication, now recognized as the official hockey bible, four years ago on a string tied around a bundle of Greenbacks that amounted to $381.81. , In October, 1947, The Hockey News circulation was 5,000; by the end of the first year it was 20,000; at the close of the second v was 30,000; the third year 35,000, and the fourth and the season just ended, 40,000 weekly.

McKenzie, who likes to think of himself as the poor man's Taylor Spink (St. Louis Sporting News) just doesn't care what we say about him as long as we mention The Hockey News. Now he's got us doing it. But anyway here are his impressions as he saw them on his fleeting visit to the city.

By KEN McKENZIE

Little did I realize when Leo Ornest, promotions director of Victoria Cougars and Pacific Coast Hockey League correspondent for The Hockey News, brought me up to meet Bill Walker, sports editor of the Times, that I would end up writing a guest column. Leo, Bill and myself had sat around talking about hockey and The Hockey News for about half an hour and I was all ready to leave when Bill suggested that I sit down and pound out a few impressions of my visit to the Pacific Coast League cities of Vancouver and Victoria.

couver and Victoria.

No one could have been more pleased than I was when Victoria Cougars won the P.C.H.L. championship last season. Lester Patrick, the man who built the Cougars, is one of my favorite men in hockey and I regard Lester and Clarence Campbell as two of the men's flight by defeating semifinalist K. N. Coutts, 6-1, 6-4, and finalist D. Ironside, 6-4, 6-1.

Mrs. Mary Payne, R.C.N., defeated B. Botts, 6-3, 6-4, to gain way, 'today won the men's flight by defeating semifinalist D. Ironside, 6-4, 6-1.

player. "Don't know where I'm going to find any players, Kenny," he tôld us. "Guess I'll have to take an ad or two in that Hockey News of yours. However, it wasn't many weeks later that Lester had a pretty fair team assembled and his feat of winning the coast championship in his second season is deserving of a large bouquet of orchids.

Everyone at The Hockey News was happy to hear that the Pacific Coast League enjoyed such a fine season during 1950-51. The P.C.H.L. always was a big name in hockey and it's great to see it back on top again. I think everyone will agree that the Victoria Cougars and the P.C.H.L. were given fine coverage in The

Some people used to kid me by saying, "Every time I read that paper of yours I read about Victoria. Aren't there any other teams in the league?" To which I would always reply: "Of course there are other teams in the league but our Victoria correspondent is especially news conscious and sends us lots of stories and plenty of good pictures, and just as long as he sends us the stuff we're going to run it in the paper. If the other correspondents do the same we'll be happy to run their material, too."

SUGGESTION HAS MERIT

There's been a lot of talk since I arrived in Vancouver two days ago about the possibility of Calgary and Edmonton joining the P.C.H.L. Saskatoon has also been mentioned as another pos sible starter in the Pacific Coast League next term. While numerous The Bays, who have not yet been defeated, have in Bill Barn ford, Jim Ranson and Norm Kowalyk the top three scorers in the league. brand of hockey than they've been seeing these past few seasons and an affiliation with the P.C.H.L. would give it to them. It's possible for these clubs to work out an arrangement with a National or American Hockey club and this would enable them to be in a position to ice younger teams than they have been doing in Roy Gallop of Jokers leads the goalkeepers with a .765 average in the two games he has played.

These younger players would be of a better calibre and would provide the Calgary and Edmonton fans with a better brand of hockey. It would also give these clubs protection on their players nockey. It would also give these clubs protection on their players and they wouldn't have to worry about losing star players at the end of each season. Every player would be under contract. The clubs wouldn't have to pay the lavish salaries to older players who are over the hill as they've been doing in the last few years. The wages some of these veterans have been pocketing each pay day is away out of line.

Well; I think it's about time to turn this typewriter back to your sports editor, as there are quite a number of calls I have yet to make before catching my plane back to Vancouver.

Incidentally, this is the first time that I've ever been asked to Thanks a lot Bill Walker. You're a brave man.

Four Clever Young Victorians Make Good In This Season's Theatre Under The Stars On Mainland

Strenuous Training, Diet Meals, But All Like Life

Rehearsal continued without a break until 12.30, when "time out" was called for lunch.

That was my chance to collect the four young Victorians, and get them outside under a shady tree above the beach for a talk.

Net result was that I discovered they are all thrilled with the training they are receiving. I also found out they are very proud of being members of this year's TUTS cast.

"There were over 300 dancers auditioned," said Pat Sparks, and Beverley and Frank chorused, "but we were the only three from Victoria and we all made the grade."

They said the rehearsal I had just watched was "the usual routine."

electric facilities are being built in the effort to meet a steeply rising demand for power, says the current Monthly Review of the resources and their relation to the country's industrial growth.

However, nothing of the sort has happened. Despite the fact that oil production is breaking all records, and the flow of oil through the inter-provincial pipeline to the eastern markets is progressing with all dispatch, the investor remains cautious and unwilling to speculate at present prices on what look reasonably good gambles.

industrial growth, The Review observes that it would be diffi cult to name a country to which the rise of hydro-electric power as a source of energy has been of greater economic significance than it has to Canada.

Hydro-electric power has been of particular importance to this country because of the lack of coal deposits near industrialized urban centres and close to most of the great pulpwood and min eral resources which, along with wheat, were to be Canada's major contribution to the world's rapidly growing needs for raw ma-terials in the 20th century. Today Canada is at the forefront among the power-using na-tions of the world. In the pro-duction of electricity from water power she is surpassed only by the United States and, if steam generated power is included, only by the United States and possibly by Russia and Germany, for which complete recent statistics are not available. On Saturday, April 11, 1897, water poured into the workings of Tynewydd Pit in the Rhonda Valley of South Wales. Of the 14 men believed killed, five were located entombed on a ledge above the flood waters. The stories of their rescue made headline news throughout the world. Queen Victoria was kept informed of the latest rescue attempts throughout the 10-day ordeal, while at the pithead itself, more tense with each successive day crowds stood. more tense with each successive day, crowds stood and waited. The dramatic rescue of the five miners —one of them a boy—after 10 days in total darkness without food and with very little air will be re-enacted in an hour-long feature program recon-structing the rescue, tomorrow at 2.30 on CJVI— CJOR and the Dominion network. The broadcast was prepared originally for the BBC by Islwyn Williams and is presented by transcription.

How the difficulties increase, as foot-by-foot, the 38-foot passage is hand-hewn, and how the rescuers have to fight gas, and the danger of reduced air pressure killing them all, is graphically told by the author. At the end of the saga one of them, rescuers from the rescued.

There is no direct connection with the Festival of Britain, but concerts under the batons of two famous English conductors will be heard this week on Canadian networks-both by transcription. Sir Malcolm Sargent will be the conductor in a recording of "Elijah," which is Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's oratorio on words from the Old Testament, heard tomorrow at 12 noon over CBR. Parts one and two will be separated by a tape-recorded interview between music producer, James Fassett, and some of the artists taking part in the performance, including soprano Isobel Baillie, contralto Gladys Ripley, tenor James Johnston, bass-baritone Harold Williams and the members of the Liverpool Philharmonic Orches-tra and the Huddersfield Choral Society. Sir John Barbirolli and the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra present their transcription Wednesday on CBR in a concert of music by Rossini, Mozart, Samuel Barber

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Dally mes, and widely-known newspaperman who has worked as a reporter and correspondent in many parts of Canada, will offer his opinion of radio distening on the Sunday afternoon panel "Critically Speaking" over CBR and the Trans-Canada network at 2.30 p.m. Knowing Mr. Keate, we can hardly expect him to pull any punches.

over the Week-end . . "Songs for Sale" at 7 on KIRO features Marg. Whiting and Mel Torme introducing the new songs of four embryonic tunesmiths. Baseball at 9.05 on CKDA and the "NBC Silver Jubilee" program at 10.15 on KOMO with vereran comic Jack Pearl recalling his original produces with "Base Murchages at "TOWOPPOW". broadcasts with "Baron Munchaussen." TOMORROW

... "Heroes of Faith" at 10.45 a.m. on CBR. "Roll Back the Years" at 3.30 p.m. on CBR. "New Theatre" at 4,30 on KOMO. "Mario Lanza" at 5 sings in English for the first time on radio, "La Donna e Mobile" over CJVI-CJOR-KIRO. Dorothy Kirsten is guest of the "Surgers Sarabeau"." Kirsten is guest of the "Summer Symphony" at 5.30 on KOMO. "Broadway's My Beat" at 6 on KIRO. And soprano Olive Mae Beach, guest soloist on the "Standard Hour," at 8.30 on KOMO.
